Quatsino Social Worker/ Director of Social Development

Alicia Carlow

Uy' skweyul,

My name is Alicia, I am dual-heritage: through my maternal roots I have British ties and through my paternal roots I am Coast Salish from the Snuneymuxw First Nation. I belong to the Fraser family, my grandfather is the late Clarence ("Clam") Fraser and my father is Gordie Fraser.

My educational background is in Social Work with a specialization in Indigenous family support and intergenerational trauma.

Some of my previous positions have included managing services for the Urban Indigenous Population who are at risk of or currently facing homelessness along with mental health and/or addictions, developing and facilitating programming that is culturally focused, and providing counselling services in the areas of mental health and wellness.

My goal is to work alongside community in developing practices and frameworks which highlights Quatsino teachings and familial connections. It is a privilege to be selected for this work and I look forward to connecting and building relationships with the community.
